

For the Honour and Grandeur: Silver at the Mansion House

By Ralph Holt, Michael Hall, Clare Gifford

Paul Holberton Publishing. Paperback / softback. Book Condition: new. BRAND NEW, For the Honour and Grandeur: Silver at the Mansion House, Ralph Holt, Michael Hall, Clare Gifford, An inscription on a silver-gilt cup and cover presented to the Lord Mayor in 1741 records that the intention of the gift was to increase the Honour and Grandeur of the City of London. It is just one piece of an exceptional collection of plate kept at Mansion House along with dozens of pieces of official regalia that represent the Mayoralty which is constantly in use today to uphold that honor and in the grandest way possible. The continued use of ceremonial plate by the City of London is a rare survival of medieval practices of display. Though the collection has very little silver from before 1800, the quality and quantity of the nineteenth-and twentieth-century pieces is extraordinary. Before Mansion House was built between 1732 and 1754, the Lord Mayor s guild hall or his own house had been used for formal entertaining by the City, and any silver presented during the year remained with the guild or became the Lord Mayor s personal property. Since the mid eighteenth century, however, a vast...
