CHAPTER IV ETHICS AND THE STUDENT NURSE Continued There is always a best way of doing everything, if it be to boil an egg. Manners are the happy way of doing things.-- Emerson. Personality, Skill and education avail little if one's Success, and personality is not pleasing. It is scarcely appinness worth while for a woman to begin training if her personality is positively unpleasant. Every pupil does well to study herself with a view to improvement in every possible way during the three years in which she is an undergraduate. Why do we say of certain people that their personality is attractive? Is it because they are beautiful to look at? No, most assuredly not. At the moment, I think of a nurse who was most popular with her patients, the doctors, and all her associates. To strangers she was plain and unquestionably she was awkward, yet she had magnetism and charm. As nearly as I can analyze her attraction, it lay in her goodness, her lack of self-consciousness, in her humor and originality. She was always desperately in earnest to do well whatever she had to do, and she was untiring in her efforts. She was sympathetic and intelligent with her patients, attentive and honest in her relations with the doctors. She was unselfishly interested in the nurses professionally and socially, always ready to do her share on any occasion. She had faults which she struggled with and in the...
