The Battery is on the King s Road; it mounts six 36 pounders; these large pieces of ordnance are seldom used; the usual salutes, c. c. are fired from small chamber guns, placed in the breastwork of the battery, which make quite noise enough to satisfy the most loyal of her Majesty s subjects. The gunner s house and powder magazine are behind the battery; the head quarters of the co-ist-guard are there at present established. Gas Works. Ttiere are two of these to supply the town, one at Black Rock, to the eastward of Kemp Town, the other to the westward of Brunswick Terrace, near Hove Church. The Custom House is on the King s Road. The civility of the Brighton officers, and the obliging manner in which they perform their, disagreeable duties, is noticed by all persons who land here from...
