One of the more serious problems was property management. DOE's contractors were missing over $700,000 worth of property. An additional $2.09 million worth of property on hand was not in the contractors inventory data bases and millions of dollars worth of equipment was being stored outside, exposed the elements, and literally rusting and corroding away. Property management was simply not a priority with DOE or its contractors. Here we are more than a decade later. And the property management problems at the Strategic Petroleum Reserve may have improved, but in today's hearing the Subcommittee will once again hear about millions of dollars worth of government-owned property that is missing.

Reviews

Extremely helpful to all class of individuals. It really is written in straightforward terms instead of difficult to understand. I am just happy to explain how this is the finest publication I have got read inside my own lifestyle and might be the very best ebook for possibly.
